"CREAM ALE" LIKE BEER

But Contains More Alcohol Says Analysis Made In Louisville Recently By Chemist.

VIOLATORS TO BE PROSECUTED.

The samples of beverages sold by Cloverport and West Point firms as "Cream of Hops" and other misleading names, and analyzed through the efforts of commonwealth's attorney Layman and county attorney Boyd, show about a half percent more of alcohol than ordinary beer.

The analysis was made by the Louisville Testing Laboratory and develops that these drinks contain from about 14 to 44 percent of alcohol.

Indictments will be returned and the parties who handle the stuff prosecuted for violation of law.

REMANDED TO STATE COURTS

Is Caleb Powers' Case—United States Supreme Court Won't Act On It.

OPINION WAS UNANIMOUS

Washington, March 12.—In an opinion by Justice Harlan, the Supreme Court this afternoon held that there was nothing sound in the case of Caleb Powers which warrants the Federal Court taking charge of it.

THE TAYLOR PARDON.

In discussing the case at length Justice Harlan indicated that after the final adjudication of the case it might come to the Federal courts upon a writ of error, if the right of the defendant should be denied. Justice Harlan said that the question of the validity of the Taylor pardon could not be considered by the court here at this time as even if the pardon was valid, that would not beg round for transfer under Act 641.

Revival Day.
The annual revival meeting of the M. E. church will begin May 1. The assistant to Rev. B. M. Currie, the pastor, has not been announced.

Spring Medicine

There is no other season when good medicine is so much needed as in the Spring.

The blood is impure, weak and impoverished—a condition indicated by pimples and other eruptions on the face and body, by deficient vitality, loss of appetite, lack of strength, and want of animation.

Hood's Sarsaparilla and Pills

Make the blood pure, vigorous and rich, create appetite, give vitality, strength and animation, and cure all eruptions. Have the whole family begin to take them today.

"Hood's Sarsaparilla has been used in my family for some time, and always with results. Last spring it was all run and got a bottle of it, and as usual great benefit." Miss Bessie A. Howe, Va.

CONSTRUCTION BIDS INVITED.

George W. Fagan, chief engineer of the Madisonville, Hartford and Eastern Railroad was here Thursday says the Madisonville Hotel for the purpose of making his last trip over the proposed route.

Mr. Fagan after making the tour will invite responsible construction companies to bid on the construction work and it is the belief that it will be but a short time until the contracts are all let and the actual work of construction underway.

H. H. Holman, one of the prime movers in the movement to build the road is more than pleased with the progress that is being made and made the statement Thursday that the road was assured.

Attended With Rheumatism.

"I was and am yet afflicted with rheumatism," says Mr. J. C. Boyne, editor of the Herald-Addictor, in a letter to the publisher of Chamberlain's Pain Balm, an able one more to attend to business. It is the best of ailments. If troubled with rheumatism give Pain Balm a trial and you are certain to be more than pleased with the prompt relief which it affords. One application relieves the pain. For sale by Short & Haynes, Cloverport.

Shelham Tipped For Treasurer.

Frankfort, Ky., March 2.—Never a legislative session closes without leaving as a result of its sitting, numerous of its members who, pleased with a brief time at the capital, would like to come back for four years' service. One of the other of the State Department, and the present session is to furnish no exception. The record which Ed H. Shelham of Breckinridge county, made as chairman of the Appropriations Committee, in sitting right upon the lid in the matter of the bills proposing to carry money out of the State Treasury, until it became apparent that the revenues of the Commonwealth are to be increased, has caused many of his friends to pat him upon the back and ask him if he would not like to become Treasurer of the State. Such suggestion makes a fellow feel good, and it has had this effect upon the genial gentleman from Breckinridge. He is in the banking business at home, so is fitted to assume the duties of Treasurer, even of a small State, and like very much the big state he has had of public life.

Additional Irvington.

The Reading club will meet with Mr. W. J. Pigott Friday March 16th. Program as follows:

Charles Kingsley, a sketch by Miss Marshall Hyattia.

Plan and purpose of the book by Rev. E. W. Graves.

Reading The Laura by Mrs. R. B. McGlothlin.

Record of last meeting Mrs. H. M. Jolly.

W. F. M. S. of the Methodist church will hold an open meeting on next Sabbath evening at 7:30 o'clock.

Rev. Paul Bagby's sermon last Sabbath from the text "The wages of sin is death" was earnest and forceful. Rev. Bagby is a young man, of great promise. With our pulpit filled by three strong capable men as Rev. Bagby, Rev. Roe and Rev. Graves, a fine year full of good work should be the record in our community.

Miss Beverly Cain went to Cloverport on a business trip Monday.

PROMINENT FAMILIES UNITED.

Coleman—Stith Wedding at Sulphur Wells Last Wednesday March 7.

WILL RESIDE AT EKRON.

Ekron, Ky., March 13.—The marriage of Miss Mabel Coleman to Dr. S. H. Stith was solemnized March 7 at the home of the bride, Mr. W. D. Coleman, at Sulphur Wells.

In the presence of a number of friends and relatives the ceremony was performed by Rev. Geo. D. Pringle, of Lexington. The wedding march was played by the bride's sister, Mrs. Harry Smith. The bride was beautifully gowned in white silk. The groom wore black. Refreshments were served which added much to this beautiful home wedding. Many valuable and handsome presents were received. Miss Coleman possesses many rare accomplishments. She was one of the best educators in the county. Dr. Stith is a well known physician here. We extend congratulations and gladly receive them as neighbors and citizens of Ekron.

Torture By Savages.

"Speaking of the torture to which some of the savage tribes in the Philippines subject their captives, reminds me of the intense suffering I endured for three months from inflammation of the kidneys," says W. M. Sherman, of Channing, Mo. "Nothing helped me until I tried Electric Bitters, three bottles of which completely cured me." Cures Liver Complaint, Dyspepsia, Blood Disorders and Malaria; and restores the weak and nervous to robust health. Guaranteed by Short & Haynes, druggist. Price 50c.

Mr. and Mrs. Younger Entertained.

Mr. and Mrs. James H. Younger entertained at five o'clock some dinner Sunday at their home in the East End. Covers were laid for Rev. and Mrs. B. M. Currie, Prof. and Mrs. J. P. King, Mrs. Lucy Younger.

Has Pneumonia.

Mr. Ben McCoy, of Bewleyville, is very sick with pneumonia.

One would think the Laxative idea in a cough syrup should have been advanced long before it was. It seems the only rational remedy for Coughs and Colds would be to move the bowels and clean the mucous membranes of the throat and lungs at the same time. Kennedy's Laxative Honey and Ray does this. It is the Original Laxative Cough Syrup, the best known remedy for Coughs, Colds, Croup, Whooping Cough, etc. Tastes good and harmless. Sold by all druggists.

"Uncle" Charley Miller Dead.

"Uncle" Charley Miller, colored, of Glendora, died Monday Mar. 5. He suffered a long time with the dropsy. During his illness he was cared for by Mr. J. C. Mattingly and friends.

Notes of Interest.

Rout. Slack, Jr., of Owensboro, died Sunday morning as a result of heart disease. He was known here.

TO ORGANIZE CANNERY

At Ekron is Purpose of Meeting To be Held there Next Monday, March 19.

FARMERS REQUESTED TO COME.

Ekron, Ky., NOTICE.—The people of Meade county are requested to meet at Ekron on Monday, March 19, at one o'clock for the purpose of organizing a cannery factory. Farmers this is to your interest as the factory uses all kinds of vegetables and fruits, leaving actual cash results at your home. The President of the company and also Mr. A. B. Slaughter will be present.

FARMERS' MEETING.

We are informed from the headquarters of the American Society of Equity at Indianapolis, Ind., that a meeting will be held at Greenville, Ky. April 16th and 17th, 1906 to organize a territorial union of said society.

This is a farmers' organization and its chief object is to secure profitable prices for all farm crops—to raise prices when they are too low, and to maintain them, when equitable. It is the original advocate of "Controlled Marketing" by farmers to compel fair prices and it claims a large degree of the credit for the revolution that has been worked in marketing crops the last few years, and which is responsible for the better prices for crops that have prevailed.

March 1st, it called a strike of the farm producers against the declining prices and has prepared a circular containing figures and facts showing why farmers should strike, and a strong argument why they can win. This circular is before us and the figures are truly revelations. They show that a few million bushels of grain, called "Visible Supply" (which is really a temporary surplus, influence the price on hundreds, or thousands, of millions of bushels representing the farmers' total crop. It is contended that a little more control by farmers will eliminate this "Visible Supply", or keep it very small, when prices can be made right and kept right.

The arguments presented in this circular are the strongest arraignment against the old system of price making by speculation we have ever seen.

A general invitation to all farmers is extended, all members of the society are urged to attend, and Local Unions are expected to send delegates.

HON. BEN JOHNSON, CANDIDATE FOR CONGRESS, SKETCH OF HIS LIFE AND PURPOSES.

Hon. Ben Johnson, present State Senator from Nelson county, and the next Congressional Representative from the Fourth district of Kentucky: The withdrawal of Hon. D. H. Smith from the contest, is formally announced in a letter read at a meeting of the Fourth district Congressional Committee, held at the Old Inn in Louisville Feb. 19, called for the purpose of determining the time place and manner of selecting the Democratic candidate, virtually assured Mr. Johnson a clean track and a walkover for the nomination.

This is a well merited compliment to one of the worthiest and most deserving Democrats the Fourth district ever produced. The usefulness of opposition to Mr. Johnson's candidacy was, to a large extent, evidenced by the unanimity with which the various county Chairmen attending the meeting, declared their preference for him, bringing only county men, should any such announce in the future.

No one deserves this compliment more than Mr. Johnson or could receive more honor and credit to the district in the high position he will be called upon soon to fill. A natural leader of men, by skill and training learned, we might almost say watered in the game of politics; brilliant intellectually, cool and level headed in times of excitement, or danger, as in the quiet hours of ease and comfort, for more than a quarter of a century, his advice has been sought and obtained in all matters concerning the welfare of his party and in every contest his voice has been raised and heard in support of Democratic principles.

He has been the recipient of high honor heretofore at the hands of the Democratic party and in every instance has proved worthy of the trust conferred.

His record as a member of the Kentucky House of Representatives, to which he was first elected for the session of 1885-86—as speaker of that body during the following term, 1887-88—as Collector of Internal Revenue for the Fifth Kentucky district of Kentucky, to which he was appointed by President Cleveland in 1893 and served till 1897. His records in the present session of the State Senate are all before the public and are as an open book. During all those years of public service his record has been so clean and clear from fraud or semblance of wrong doing that the hand of calumny has never even dared assail it. His honesty of purpose and integrity have never been questioned. In these times when graft, chicanery and double dealing so often mar the character of public servants, such a record is one to be indeed proud of. Coupled with Ben Johnson's purity of character is another element the people, especially Democrats, love and admire, that is firmness and positiveness. You can always place him on any question. He is for a measure or a man, he is always openly so, and it usually takes but a short time to find out how he stands. A stand once taken on any important matter is usually final with him. This marked firmness of character, while it may have made him a few enemies, has named his friends legion, who always rally at his call, and have never failed to bear his banner to victory. The same success in November is now fully assured.

Ben Johnson began his political career by serving as a page in the State Senate at the session in 1874-75, when quite a small boy, and from that time has been a close student and observer as well as usually an active participant in Kentucky politics and affairs. The knowledge and experience so acquired admirably equips him for the campaign on which he will soon enter.

As soon as the present session of the Legislature is over it is Mr. Johnson's purpose and intention to enter upon an active canvass of the district and in its various counties, where a warm welcome awaits him. After he has been formally declared the nominee which will be in May, as soon seems certain he will then be ready to meet any opponent the Republicans may set off to place in the field against him. Those who know his clean, clear logical style of oratory have no fears as to the result. He will bear the Democratic standard to victory and no Democrat will ever have cause to regret their choice in that contest.

Whilst Mr. Johnson is so thoroughly equipped politically to fill the high position to which he will be chosen, he is equally qualified to fill the same socially.

Easy graceful and well possessed, personally he will be ably assisted by a charming wife, three lively and accomplished daughters just merging into womanhood, all of whom are musicians of the highest order and culture. They will add to the reputation and fame of Kentucky women now so well established in Washington society and be gladly welcomed by the Kentucky contingent to that great and beautiful city.

It was a fine sale everything brought good prices and sold quickly. Dave Henry was the auctioneer and says it was the best sale he has ever had in a long time. Mr. Carlton and his family are very popular in that community and they date to see them there. The farm was sold to R. M. Dowell for $1465 cash, 107 acres. Mr. Dowell has sold the Ben Hardin farm which purchased recently of W. C. Kasey for $2850.

EX-GOV. CRITTENDEN'S ADDRESS

At Great "Home-Coming" Meeting in Louisville--Refers to His Native
Town, Cloverport, And Says

"GOD BLESS THE LITTLE TOWN."

The following address was made by Ex-Gov. Tom Crittenden, of Missouri, formerly of Cloverport, before the great "Home-Coming" meeting at the Galt House in Louisville on Tuesday night of last week.

"I heard the address tonight of Judge Sims with peculiar pleasure. It almost made me feel sorry or regretful that I ever left the State of Kentucky to go even to as great a State as Missouri, which is, or has been, truly termed 'The Eldest Daughter of this State.' But at the same time, whilst it produced this feeling of sadness that I departed from its limits many, many years ago, it has fully compensated me for having done so when I came back here tonight and witness the scene that has stirred my very heart and soul to the very bottom. And then, I see so many Kentuckians, so many citizens of the State, assembled here with the view of adopting some plan or plans by which to welcome its wandering sons and daughters who have gone from its midst, some twenty, some thirty, some fifty, and some sixty years ago.

"When I was coming here, I have a half brother at whose home I am staying, as a guest, I suppose a tree guest, and he said:

"I want to give you a piece of advice before you go to that meeting. Don't talk too much about Kentucky, I said.

"What? Are you going to have me get up before that splendid audience of people, Kentuckians, and have me talk about everything but Kentucky?"

Speaks For Kentucky.

"What would you think of a minister who would get up and preach everything but God and Christ and Him crucified? What would you think of a young man falling in love with a handsome Kentucky lady who would talk to her about everything but his own sweetheart? I said if this is the last act of life I am going to speak for Kentucky tonight. I have had more trouble all my life with that boy than Peck ever had with his bad boy. When we were growing up together at Cloverport, and God bless the little town, he said to me one day in a spirit of anger:

"Tom, you are one of the others, will have to leave Kentucky. This town and this county and this State is not large enough for both of us, and as you are the younger of the two, you will have to get up and go."

"I took him at his word and I left the State, and while in some respects I have regretted it, as I said before, in many I have not.

"Now the question arises, and it is a material question, it is one of business, what are you going to do with us when we come here? How many do you suppose are coming? Where are these wandering children of Kentucky coming from? From North, East, South and West, they will come and come with the expectation that you will give them just such a welcome as Kentucky can always give to the stranger, whether he gates, and more especially to a wandering son or daughter.

Have Big Job

"You are going to have a bigger job on your hands than you ever had before. Let me assure you of that fact, provided the railroads will make such rates as will be acceptable to the people who want to come. The disposition is to come, but it is not every body that can pay excessive rates to come on a week or, two week's spree, such as it would be here, and when I say spree, I do not mean an intertempore spree, but one of eating, and of loving the old spots from which they came, and of loving the old graveyards where are buried their loved dead. If those roads will give us one cent a mile we will fill your town full from coast to garret, and from back gate to front gate, and we will make you proud of your invitation or tried of the crowd that has come.

"I don't know whether there is an officer of any railroad running in or out of Louisville here, but let me say to you people in all earnestness that we are not coming here merely to visit Louisville. That is a great desideratum I admit for when you get here you are within the gates of the greatest emporium of your State; but we will be overjoyed to pay any price to get outside of your city to again visit the old country from which we came.

As to Railroads

"What are the roads coming into Louisville going to do? There is a big lot of new born in the State, and you must remember there are comparatively few that were born in the city of Louisville. There is not one coming who don't want to go back to the counties in which they were born, and from which they departed when they were children or young people. Now, will the roads running in here be a generous as those roads which come to you?"

"There are a great many people in my State, Judge Sims, who are from your county. They want to return to the old county and drink from the old fountains and the old springs, and wallow in the old ponds of which you have been speaking.

Born in Shelby.

"I was born in Shelby county, within thirty or forty miles of your city on a place now owned by Harry Weisinger, a splendid fellow, and I said today: 'Harry, I want to visit the old farm and see the old spot where I was born. I am told you have torn down the old house where my father and mother lived and where I and other members of the family were born. I want to see it for nothing but to breathe the air which they lived before I was born. Will you permit me to do so?'"

"Yes, I will if you don't bring any beastly Missouri politicians along with you," I said.

"No we are not coming as politicians. We have all been reading what the newspapers have been saying in your last campaign of brotherly love on a reformation of all the evils of politics, and we are coming back with that spirit, and no politicians will be among us, but we will be all patriots, we will all be Kentuckians from head to foot, and we will all be old spots where we were born, and the old counties from which we came."

"Well, he said, 'If you are coming with that kind of spirit, I will administer that myself.' I said to him Harry, there is one thing that we Kentuckians have shared greatly since we left the State, I have never had the pleasure of attending a Baroque since I have been in the State of Missouri, a Baroque such as they get in this State, and I would like to have one here in Louisville, and if you have one we will not turn our backs on it." He said: 'I will give the crowd that goes to Shelby county a Baroque, and I will rejoice when you come and be glad when you're gone.'

"Now gentlemen, somebody may be anxious to know what compensation Kentucky will have for bringing this immense crowd of people within its gates and within your houses. That is the very lowest estimate and the very lowest estimate and the very lowest way to look at this thing. That never enters the mind of a Kentuckian, my friend, Engelhard never. We will compensate a thousand ways that you know not of. You may take even upon the lowest estimate of dollars and cents, and bring one hundred thousand people here, and if the roads are reasonable—I want to beat that into my friend Brown's head—he will give you a larger crowd than one hundred thousand people.

"Suppose each one spends $25. Look at it for a moment. That is a low estimate for the amount to be spent when you are in Louisville. I can prove that by Judge Sims. Think of that. Twenty five times one hundred thousand will make $2,500,000. Now look at it in another aspect. That money is turned over so rapidly from hotels to bars and from her rooms to barber shops, and from barber shops to grocers, and from grocers to Logan Murray's bank that it will be equivalent to one million dollars that we will spend here in your midst.

Big Stick for the Rail Roads.

"Now, I am not in favor of this wild legislation against railroads. I am reminded of a little thing that took place down at Cloverport where Logan Murray lived. I don't know whether he recognizes the fact or not. There were two Germans fighting, Black Dutchmen we call them, and one had the other down, and some men rushed up and said: 'Uncle George, don't hurt him.' 'No I am not going to hurt him, but I have determined he shall hurt me.' So we are not going to hurt the railroads if the railroads don't hurt us. If they do, Congress is in session and the President has his big stick, and what he will do with them I don't know.

"Mr. President and gentlemen, before closing permit me to say I am deeply gratified at the reception extended more from the kindness of your native natures than in the merit I possess. I receive it as a splendid compliment to the great State from which I come, whose population is composed largely of Kentuckians, whose hearts have been gladdened by your generous invitation to come home once again as your guests, to tread with eager feet the old soil of the counties from which they came and to call the more vividly the old loved faces long since passed to their reward.

"I am a Missourian by adoption, a long residence of nearly fifty years within its borders, because it has been good to me and honored me greatly. I have no desire to leave its generous soil and its generous people. I am a native-born Kentuckian with all the love that language implies. Its people have been my people, and its God my God. Save one, those dearest to me are buried in its graves, and that alone is enough to draw me to it with all the love of an ardent and true native. I desire to see Kentucky again in every honorable enterprise, whether individual, local, State or national, feeling and believing that what adds glory or happiness to it gives a part to every one born on its soil, whether they be now on Greenleaf's key mountains or Africa's golden sands.

"Kentucky is right in commerce, it is right in religion, it is right in its social qualities, it is right in its wonderful beauties, yet its politics in the language of one of its brilliant men, is the dampest, still they are Kentucky politics, 'bad general', appeared here and will die here amidst their worshipers none ever like them before, and none will ever use like them hereafter.

"But, with all its faults, I love the old State with a deep love of childhood, though I have long since passed that age, and with a love which has matured into manhood and old age. There is no place like Kentucky. There never has been any place like Kentucky, and there never will be any place like Kentucky. In other words, Kentucky is Kentucky, and it can be nothing but Kentucky, and to undertake to make it anything else would be like repeating the fifty or refining the gold. President Roosevelt, in his 'Winning of the West,' shows that Kentucky was a nursery both for the bone and sinew and brain, and in planting from even Louisville to the Gulf of Mexico and the Pacific, all which you will find of the best today.

"You have called me to come in June, when the roses are sweetest, when the sun is brightest, when the moon is the most silvery, when the stars are the most glorious, when all nature is present, when your music is the softest, and we are coming to sing from ten thousand times ten thousand throats, the patriotic song of the dead poet who has made, if possible, the name of Kentucky more illustrious and its name, by association and as a township, illustrations a household word in every State in the Union.

"Let not Kentucky forget Stephen C. Foster. Songs, as well as laws, make a State great. Man once said: 'Let me write the songs: I care not who makes the laws.' Permit me to say you could build no greater monument to him in marble, brass or silver than he has built for himself in writing this great song; but still there should be one erected on the very spot on which the song was written which should ever, turn its topmost height, bid farewell to the day of the day and welcome, the coming morn.

"Would I be saying too much to say to the good people, that if you do not erect the monument to Stephen C. Foster, those of us coming here in June will do so for you. Our work would then be a work of love, not a reflection upon the generosity and the appreciation of Kentucky. When we shall come, all that I can ask for on behalf of those people, is that you give them such a greeting from your warm hearts and hands as will be worthy of the great old State of Kentucky. Then, oh, then, we will remember and love you the more.

"In 1847 one of the uneducated mountaineers of Kentucky went to California in search of gold; that was a time when the whole country had been started from center to circumference by the publications that the whole State or Territory at that time, was full of gold, and all one had to do was to pick it from the trees. After this mountaineer had remained there for one or more years, working as a Kentuckian can when impelled by want and determination to make money, he gathered up the accumulation of his labors in small burlap bags and started homeward. In one of the villages near the mine he saw two gentlemen looking at a map of our country. In his rough garb, with soiled hands and a countenance beaming with honesty, he said: 'Gentlemen, I can't read or write. I am a Kentuckian, want to go back to the dear old State before I die; will you point it out to me on the map by placing your finger on the spot?'"

"When one of them kindly did so, he stood silently for a moment, great tears trickling down the furrows of his old time worn and sunburnt face, and then said: 'Thank you gentlemen, that is God's country, and I am going back to it and will never leave it again.' These are the sentiments of a true Kentuckian. John Fox, Jr., in the sweetest of all stories, 'Little Shepherd of Kingdom Come', notes some of the tenderest sentiments that ever came from brain or pen, but those touching as they are, are no more touching than what the old mountaineer said, 'that is God's country and I am going back to it.' The thousands of us who will assemble here in June will give attestation to that same patriotic sentiment, with the deepest feeling and will say, Kentucky is God's country and we are for it as Kentucky is today, we are for it as Kentucky has been in the past, and we are for it as Kentucky will be in the future."

AID SOCIETY'S BANNER YEAR.

$214.30 Made in 1906 by M. E.

Church Ladies-50 Members Enrolled.

NEW OFFICERS ELECTED

The Ladies' Aid Society of the M. E. church closed their most successful fiscal year March 1, 1906. The report below will show that these Kentucky ladies have not been idle during the last twelve months. All meetings were held in the M. E. church.

The officers last year were: Mrs. C. B. Skillman, pres.; Mrs. Henry Gibbs, v-pres.; Mrs. James S. Yonker, sec.; Mrs. Shelby Conrad, treas.

The following officers for the next fiscal year were elected at last meeting: Mrs. H. L. Stader, pres.; Mrs. W. H. Bowmer, v-pres.; Mrs. Fred Kruse, sec.; Mrs. H. A. Oelze, treas. Total amount made last year $214.30. This amount was raised by monthly 10 cent dues, entertainments, comfort making, etc. The last more of the old year was that each member should give one dollar at the last meeting. The money to be earned in some manner. The manner was suggested and carried out. One member took the noble place to make the dollar. Another washed and ironed clothes. One good lady was kind enough to let her husband snore away the past cold mornings while she made the fire, her pay being a $1.00. One lady donated herself of a trip to Mackinaw. A quiet few made the dollar by sewing. And one lady, good and true, waited on her husband for the amount of her pledge. All of this $214.30 was judiciously expended for charity purposes. The church parsonage was practically newly furnished and was repainted and repaired.

The Society has 50 members in all, and those besides the above named officers and former officers are as follows:

Vinol THE COD LIVER PREPARATION WITHOUT OIL

Vinol is fast superseding old-fashioned cod liver oil and emulsions because, without a drop of oil or disagreeable feature, it contains all the medicinal elements of cod liver oil, actually taken from fresh cod's livers. By our process the oil, having no value either as a medicine or food, is separated from the medicinal elements and thrown away. Unlike old-fashioned cod liver oil and emulsions, Vinol is deliciously palatable, agreeable to the weakest stomach, and therefore unequalled as a body builder and strength creator for old people, puny children, weak, run-down men and women, after sickness, and for all pulmonary diseases. Everything Vinol contains is named on the label.

OUR GUARANTEE—We have such faith in VINOL that if you will take it we promise if it does not benefit or cure you we will return you your money without question. We take all the risk.

"WITH UNITY AND FAITH IN GOD"

Nothing Will Baffle Temperance Forces Against Evil."

SAYS REV. LEWIS AT FIRST UNION MEETING.

4. There is one body, and one spirit, even as we are called in one hope of your calling.
5. One Lord, one faith, one baptism.
6. One God and Father of all, who is above all, and through all, and in you all."—Ephesians IV, verses 4, 5 and 6.

The above verses were read by Rev. J. T. Lewis' text at the Union Prayer and Temperance meeting at M. E. church Tuesday night of last week. This was the first of the proposed union meetings and Rev. Lewis' text and talk were very appropriate to the occasion. A large audience was present. Songs were sung with vim that has not before marked these temperance gatherings, earnest, soul inspiring, pleading prayers were offered to God to aid the organization to blot out the leaven of sin—whiskey—and bring those who were dwarfed by it to Christ. The prayers were pleading not for the eradication of men who handle whiskey but for the eradication of the whiskey itself.

Rev. Lewis said that the temperance people should work in unity and to the sole purpose of bringing men to God. He said that with unity and faith in God nothing would baffle the forces against evil.

The executive committee was instructed to arrange for several temperance speakers. J. D. Babcock was appointed to ask the Rev. Geo. of Irvington, to deliver a temperance lecture here on the following Wednesday night which will be tonight.

The original Foleys & Co., Chicago, originated the Foleys & Tar as a throat and lung remedy, and on account of the great merit and popularity of Foleys' Honey and Tar many imitations are offered for the genuine. Ask for Foleys' Honey and Tar and refuse any substitute. No other preparation will give the same satisfaction. It is mild and laxative. It contains no opiates and is safest for children and delicate persons. A. B. Fisher.

Results of Herdian Torpedo.

Medford, Minn., March 6.—The result of the dead and injured as the result of the torpedo which swept through this city Friday evening was a total of twenty-four dead and sixty-six injured, a number of whom are not expected to live. No additional deaths have been reported since Sunday night.

The property loss has been unofficially reported at $1,350,000, the estimated destruction of residences alone being placed at $500,000, practically all in the Lindsey Hill section and the East End and Georgetown. The sufferers from the torpedo, who will receive tornado insurance amounting to $607,000.

The Cause of Many Sudden Deaths.

There is a disease prevailing in this city most dangerous because so deceptive. It is called kidney trouble. Many deaths are caused by it—heart disease, pneumonia, heart failure or apoplexy are often the result of kidney disease. Kidney trouble is allowed to advance the kidneys become poisoned and the blood attacks the vital organs or the kidneys themselves break down and waste away cell by cell.

Bladder troubles must always result from derangement of the kidneys and a cure is obtained quickest by a proper treatment of the kidneys. If you are feeling badly you are making no mistake by taking Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy.

It corrects inability to hold urine and scalding pain in passing it, and overcomes the unpleasant necessity of being compelled to get up during the night, and to get up many times during the night, and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases.

Swamp-Root is pleasant to take and sold in all drug stores in fifty-cent and one-dollar bottles. You may have a sample bottle of this wonderful new discovery and a book that tells all about it, both by mail, address Dr. Kilmer & Co., P.O. Box 539, Albany, N. Y. When writing mention this generous offer in this paper.

Make no mistake but remember the Swamp-Root. Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is the address, "Bingham's," N. Y. bottle.

WITCHES

SKETCH OF THE LIFE OF LYDIA E. PINKHAM

And a True Story of How the Vegetable Compound Had Its Birth and How the "Panic of '73" Caused it to be Offered for Public Sale in Drug Stores.

This remarkable woman, whose maiden name was Estes, was born in Lynn, Mass., February 9th, 1819, coming from a good old Quaker family. For some years she taught school, and became known as a woman of an alert and investigating mind, an earnest seeker after knowledge, and above all, possessed of a wonderfully sympathetic nature.

In 1843 she married Isaac Pinkham, a builder and real estate operator, and their early married life was marked by prosperity and happiness. They had four children, three sons and a daughter.

In those good old fashioned days it was common for mothers to make their own home remedies from roots and herbs, nature's own remedies—calling in a physician only in specially urgent cases. By tradition and experience many of them gained a wonderful knowledge of the curative properties of the various roots and herbs.

Mrs. Pinkham took a great interest in the study of roots and herbs, their characteristics and power over disease. She maintained that just as nature so bountifully provides in the forest, fields and orchards vegetable foods of all kinds; so, if we but take the pains to find them, in the roots and herbs of the field there are remedies expressly designed to cure the various ills and weaknesses of the body, and it was her pleasure to search them out and prepare simple and effective medicines for her own family and friends.

Chief of these was a rare combination of the choicest medicinal roots and herbs found best adapted for the cure of the many troubles peculiar to the female sex, and Lydia E. Pinkham's friends and neighbors learned that her compound was a remedy, and it became quite popular among them.

All this so far was done freely, without money and without price, as a labor of love.

But in 1873 the financial crisis struck Lynn. Its length and severity were too much for the large real estate interests of the Pinkham family, as this class business suffered from the fearful depression, so when the Centennial year dawned it found their property swept away. Some other source of income had to be found.

At this point Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was made known to the world.

The three sons and the daughter, with their mother, combined forces to restore the family fortune. They argued that the medicine which was so good for their woman friends and neighbors was equally good for the country of the whole world.

The Pinkhams had no money, and little credit. Their first laboratory was the kitchen, where roots and herbs were steeped on the stove, gradually filling a gross of bottles. Then came the question of selling it, for always before they had given it away freely. They hired a job printer to run off some pamphlets setting forth the merits of the medicine, now called Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and these were distributed by the Pinkhams sons in Boston, New York, and Brooklyn.

The wonderful curative properties of the medicine were, to a great extent, self-advertising, for whoever used it recommended it to others, and the demand gradually increased.

In 1877, by combined efforts the family had saved enough money to commence newspaper advertising and from that time the growth and success of the enterprise were assured, until today Lydia E. Pinkham and her Vegetable Compound have become household words everywhere, and many tons of roots and herbs are used annually in its manufacture.

Lydia E. Pinkham herself did not live to see the great success of this work. She passed to her reward years ago, but not till she had provided means for continuing her work as effectively as she could have done it herself.

During her long and eventful experience she was ever methodical in her work and she was always careful to preserve a record of every case that came to her attention. The case of every sick woman who applied to her for advice, and there were thousands—received careful study, and the details, including symptoms, treatment and results were recorded for future reference, and to-day these records, together with hundreds of thousands made since, are available to sick women the world over, and represent a vast collaboration of information regarding the treatment of woman's ills, which for authenticity and accuracy can hardly be equaled in any library in the world.

With Lydia E. Pinkham worked her daughter-in-law, the present Mrs. Pinkham. She was carefully instructed in all her hard-earned knowledge, and for years she assisted her in her vast correspondence.

To her hands naturally fell the direction of the work when its original force passed away. For nearly twenty-five years she has continued it, and nothing in the work shows when the first Lydia E. Pinkham dropped her pen, and the present Mrs. Pinkham, now the mother of a large family, took it up. With women assistants as capable as herself, the present Mrs. Pinkham continues this great work, probably from the office of other people have so many women been advised how to regain health. Sick women, this advice is "Yours for Health" freely given if you only write to ask for it.

Such is the history of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from simple roots and herbs: the one great medicine for women's ailments, and a fitting monument to the noble woman whose name it bears.

A Scientific Wonder.

The cures that stand to its credit make Bucklen's Arnica Salve a scientific wonder. It cures E. R. Mafford, Treasurer for the Patrons of Husbandry, Waynesboro, Va., of distressing case of Piles. It heals the worst Burns, Sores, Boils, Ulcers, Cuts, Wounds, Chills, and Salt Rheum. Only 25c at Short & Haynes, drug store.

Out of Corders.

Sixty-five counties of the State have voted licensed saloons; twenty-nine have licensed saloons in but one place, and only five counties allowed whiskey to be sold generally within their limits. They are Campbell, Kenton, Jefferson, Mead and Todd and each one of these counties has more or less "dry" territory.

If you are troubled with Piles and can't find a cure, try Witch Hazel Salve. It will cure you that made by E. C. DeWitt & Co., Chicago. It is the Original. If you have used Witch Hazel Salve without being relieved it is probable that you got hold of one of the many worthless counterfeits that are sold on the reputation of the genuine DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve.

WANT TO PLACE SIXTY GOOD BOYS AND GIRLS.

The Kentucky Children's Home Society has sixty boys and girls between the ages of three and nine for whom they desire good, Christian homes. These children are manual, bright and attractive and we guarantee that no family will be disappointed in a child we send them.

The winter months have given us an enormous amount of work to do. We are receiving more children now in a month than we formerly did in a year and as a rule, the children are much brighter and much better looking and much easier controlled than children we formerly handled.

Will you show your interest in this great work for humanity by giving a home to one of these little ones? Unless you have a first class home in every respect and unless you are moral and stand well in your community, do not apply, as we will under no circumstances, place a child in a home unless it can get the very best advantages.

This is the Master's work, inasmuch as he said "Suffer little children to come unto Me and forbid them not." If you are interested in this charity, and would like to take a child, please address the Kentucky Children's Home Society, No. 2110 Van Buren Avenue, Louisville, Ky.

Yours very respectfully,
George L. Schenck,
State Sept.

Doctors are Purled.

The remarkable recovery of Kenneth McIvor, of Vanceboro, Me., is the subject of much interest to the medical fraternity and a wide circle of friends. He says of his cure: "Owing to severe inflammation of the Throat and congestion of the Lungs, three doctors gave me up to die, when as a last resort I was induced to try Dr. King's New Discovery and I am happy to say, it saved my life." Cures the worst Coughs and Colds, Bronchitis, Tonsillitis, Weak Lungs, Hayfever, and La Grippe. Guaranteed at Short & Haynes, drug store. 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free.

Growth of K. P.'s.

"The Knights of Pythias are growing more rapidly in membership than any other fraternal order in the United States," remarked former Representative Thomas G. Stewart, grand chancellor of the Kentucky state lodge, at the Grand hotel, to a Cincinnati Engineer reporter, "and now rank numerically next to the Masons, the Old Fellows country, the Odd Fellows and Masons have over 1,000,000 members each, and the Knights of Pythias enter the new year with over 700,000. Ohio is the banner Knights of Pythias state, with over 60,000 members, and Illinois shows up second. The order has increased its numbers more in Kentucky within the last two years than any other state and has at this time 12,000 on its rolls in the old commonwealth. If the Knights of Pythias continue their increase of membership in this decade as they did from 1900 to 1905 they will be ahead of either the Odd Fellows or the Masons."

They have had class meetings in Chicago and Kansas City, in which 1,000 members participated.

If it is a billion attack take Chamberlain's Cough and Liver Tablets and a quick cure is certain. For sale by Short & Haynes, Cloverport Ky.

Figures On Farms

If you could sell your farm today for $100 an acre and buy it back tomorrow for $10 an acre, you would do it.

If you can buy the $100 land for $10 somewhere else, the proposition is just as good. You can buy it in the Southwest.

Why shouldn't you do it?

"I Came, I Saw, I Prospered."

That's the universal report from the great Southwest, where prosperity is the common experience of the many. It is a report given not boastfully, rather by way of encouragement and advice. The Southwest is in a position to advise. He has passed from his previous condition of dependence, or partial dependence, to the most perfect independence. He has broadened his acres and increased his holdings three, five, and even ten fold by the exchange of high priced lands in the East for cheap lands of the Southwest, multiplied in extent—every acre "an acre of good ground." In a word, "his ship has come in." Can you afford to wait longer for yours? There are many similar opportunities still open in Texas Remedy for Rattlesnake Bites.

This paper notes with deep regret that a number of persons are dying from the bites of rattlesnakes in different sections of Texas. Most all cases are young children, and in a good many instances they are bitten on the hand or foot.

In such case the following remedy is said to be a splendid antidote for the rattler's bite, provided it is used immediately after being bitten: Take a pan or bowl and pour in enough kerosene oil to cover the wound. It will draw the poison out immediately in the course of a few minutes and turn perfectly green; then pour out the oil and refill the bowl, being careful to put in enough oil to completely cover the wound.

Leave the foot or hand in the oil as long as the oil turns green. Then put on a poultice of plain table salt and saturate thoroughly with oil. Keep this up for about an hour and there is scarcely any danger of fatal results.—Merkel Mail.

Indigestion is much of a habit. Don't get the habit. Take a little Kodol Dyspepsia Cure after eating and you will get belching, puffing, belching and growling. Kodol Digests what you eat and makes the stomach sweet. Sold by all druggists.

THOUGHTS

An independent press does more day by day to crush out crime and restrain criminals than all of the organized and paid constabulary of the State; the searchlight of its investigation into the conduct of public officials is more dreaded by the corrupt and the vicious than all of the sanctions of the penal law; and as an upholder and sustainer of an enlightened public opinion it constitutes a large part of the foundation of civil liberty. Those whose faith is sufficiently optimistic to indulge a hope for the permanency of our institutions and civilization must rest it, in a large part, at least upon a confidence of the quickening influence of an untrammeled press upon the public conscience.—Judge Henry S. Barker, of the Kentucky Court of Appeals.

SYSTEMATIZE ROAD BUILDING.

In view of the Good Roads Convention to be held in Hardinsburg on Monday, March 26, it seems to us, that it would be well for the people who intend to go to this convention and set forth their views, to think of a plan to systematize the road building of the county. This deficiency has long been evident, and until it is overcome, the people will not hope to get the desired results in the making of county roads. Look to the States and counties which have good roads. We see there, system. A record of every day's work is made. A plat of the county roads shows where the labor has been expended. These counties do not allow a cart of dirt to be dumped here and there without any definite end in view. They require subordinates to work according to plans and orders from the county supervisors. The supervisor then is responsible for all of the county's roads, good or bad. The results of such a system are very beneficial to the people. The tax-payer can at once see how and where his money was spent. Every community, under this system, gets an equal amount of the benefit of the road tax. No roads are worked merely for political gain. Everything is accounted for.

The tax-payer will have a say at the convention at Hardinsburg, and this is right. No man is willing to vote to raise taxes higher when he sees that the present road tax receipts are being thrown to the winds. The tax-payer will not vote for an increased road tax unless you show him a plan whereby the road-tax money will benefit the condition of the county roads, and he is right. There is not a more ardent believer in good roads in Breckenridge county than the editor of the News, but we should like to see the money collected as road tax put to some avail, and the News is not in favor of higher road taxes unless a method or a system is devised and put in operation whereby this money will be judiciously expended, and not thrown into the hands of incompetent county politicians through appointments as remuneration for putting a county clerk, a sheriff, a judge, a school superintendent or some man in office.

"BACK TO THE FARM."

William Borsodi, editor of "The National Advertiser," of New York, has gone to considerable pains to prepare an open letter to the Hon. James Wilson, Secretary of Agriculture, on the "Crying Need of the Country" which he deems it, to keep the "Farmer Boys on the Farm." The News is disposed to agree with Col. Borsodi on this important question. We believe our boys in Breckenridge and sister counties should be encouraged to remain on the old homestead farm rather than to leave it and go to the city. Instead of the father or the mother, who are perhaps sickened and disheartened because of their failure to draw from the hills and valleys the glories and comforts of life, picturing to their boy the glowing possibilities of a prosperous life in the city, as they may think, should picture to the boys' youthful mind the independence, the prestige and power of the successful farmer. Remind your boy of Washington's words when he said that farming was the "noblest occupation of man." Teach him to study farming from a scientific viewpoint as well as a practical one. Let the young man study the soil, its possibilities and its failures. Encourage the young man by remunerating him with cash for his services as he would be paid in the employ of a city corporation or company. Do not run down the farm but run it up, and then the boy will cling to the old homestead as his most valuable heritage. He will profit by his father's failures and by the knowledge he has attained by study, and make the old home a home of which he and his will be proud.

PAYING THE PENALTY.

ELIZABETHTOWN has saloons, this is right, read:

A cold blooded, premeditated murder occurred in this city at the home of Mr. Chas. T. Warren Saturday night, when Henry Whittaker, while under the influence of liquor, deliberately shot and instantly killed his wife, Susan Whittaker, because she refused to live with him.—Elizabethtown Mirror.

And yet some men will say that local option is a farce, and about the same condition of affairs exist without saloons as with them. The above is just one of the many cases to illustrate the degradation wrought by saloons upon any community. Below is a clipping from the Elizabethtown News which goes further to illustrate this same point:

"Saturday was a red letter day in the Police Court. There were nineteen arrests, nine for crap playing, one for the destruction of property, two for running horses on the streets, three for drunkenness, two for swearing on the streets, one for carrying a razor and one for murder. The city has been comparatively quiet since Christmas, and the outbreak Saturday was a surprise to the city officials."

This is the penalty Elizabethtown is paying for an open saloon, and which Cloverport will pay if the voters of this good little town allow the saloon to enter within her gates. But we have too much confidence in the intelligence, the manhood, the Christian citizenship of our beloved city to think that the saloon will be legally invited here on May 5.

LET US GIVE THANKS.

Yesterday was the fifth anniversary of an event in Cloverport's history which needs not to be named to bring it to the minds of our people. This event is so indelibly stamped in our memory that nothing but the last summons will erase it. Our minds reflect and this awful catastrophe is as vivid as if it happened but yesterday. We see how our life's efforts were swept away in a few hours, and how we fought ruin and almost financial failure, and how we struggled and worked together in order to live in comfort again in the place our father had settled. Why did we not turn disheartened on the great heap of ashes and set our heads toward the Golden West and make our abode there? Why did we not go to the evergreens of Florida or to the fertile soil about the Great Lakes? It was because we loved home, Cloverport and Kentucky. This is why our people staid and built houses on the ashes of their life's efforts and began over again, five years ago.

It is hard for us to see but it was all for the best. Let us give thanks unto the Lord that our lives were spared and for the five years of peace and prosperity in which we have lived since 1901. Let us give thanks unto the Lord.

The following is the result of the first day's work of the Hardin county grand jury.

Murder, 1; furnishing liquor to persons in habit of becoming intoxicated, 17; furnishing liquor to minor, 3. These indictments were all the result of the first day's work of the grand jury, and is an unusual number for the first day. This Thursday there will be about nine more indictments returned.—Elizabethtown Mirror.

A busy, successful publisher has little time in which to "back-cap" his contemporaries. It is generally the fellow who is having a tussle with "can't get there" that does the knocking. A sufficient quantity of knocking always brings sympathy to the knocked.—News-papierman.

The Rothchild's family is said to be the richest family in the world. The total wealth of all being $485,000,000. The money was made in the banking business and no scandal is charged in the accumulation of their Enormous fortune. The family, it is said, lives a modest life.

The Legislature passed a bill to allow school teachers their salary for the week in which they attend county institutes, provided their respective schools are in session at the time the institute meets.

We Cloverporters are proud of our Ex Gov. Tom Crittenden. Read his speech. Then think of the days when he walked about Cloverport a barefooted boy. Breckenridge county has her share of "big men."

There are just 7,017 saloons in Chicago. This accounts for Chicago's reputation of being one of the most wicked cities on the face of the earth.

Don't neglect to take advantage of our combination offer giving the News, one year, and Farm Journal, five years, for $1.

A SPECIAL from Hardinsburg says that Judge Henry DeHaven Moorman is thinking of marrying. Congratulations.

The Mayor and City Council are to be congratulated upon their success in securing electric lights for Cloverport.

BRECKENRIDGE county ought to have a "Home-coming" day. Let the Commercial Club take this matter up.

Go to the Good Roads Convention and lend your help.

The foregoing citizens of Breckenridge county are hereby appointed Chairman and Secretaries of the Good Roads Convention, to be held in Hardinsburg, on Saturday, March 24, 1906, at the place of each precinct, at 2 o'clock, p. m. I have appointed 13 delegates in each precinct who will be the Chairman and Secretary, work up the interest and make the precinct and county convention a success. The delegates will confer with the Chairman and all pull together. See that your records the sense of the precinct convention on each and every subject touched in the letter of appointment. Have it nicely written and systematically arranged for future reference. The Chairman, Secretaries and delegates will then meet in Hardinsburg on Monday, March 26, at 8 o'clock sharp, bringing with them the written report of the precinct, and we will be entertained and instructed by some of the best men, and profit by each others' suggestions and criticisms. If there is any one of the above who cannot serve or will not serve, it is your plain duty to inform me forthwith. If there is any one that you desire, I will take pleasure in furnishing any that is at my command. If this were a friend you would drop everything to come. There is no man in the county so important to the interest as this move, if successful. Let us take hold of this matter to succeed—and we will.

Very Truly,

YOUNG DIPLOMATS.

CHILDREN OF AMBASSADORS AND MINISTERS AT THE NATION'S CAPITAL.

They Constitute Quite a Foreign Colony. Representative Types From the Courts and Governments of all Nations.

The city of Washington has among its inhabitants a colony of foreign children who bring to our Republic the manners and customs of many far-off lands. They are the sons and daughters of the officials known as diplomats—men sent by the various governments of the world to act as their agents at the headquarters of Uncle Sam. Quite a number of these children of foreign parents have been born in this country and a few years since a young Chinese lady opened its eyes in pointed out capital city on the Fourth of July, to and was named Washington.

Another youngster who is a native of the United States is the little son of Senor Quesada, the Minister or Envoy from the Republic of Cuba. Senor Quesada and his wife have two children, both strikingly handsome with large dark eyes and the olive complexion of the Latin-American. Their cousin, a young girl whose home is in the city of Havana Cuba, spends her vacations with them and they never fail to give a great children's party in her honor every time she visits Washington.

From the Antipodes.

An exceedingly pretty little girl is Frau Matilda Busche, the daughter of that blonde giant Baron Busche, Secretary of the German Embassy and the dark-complexioned South American wife whom he married while stationed in the Argentine Republic at the other end of the world. Little Matilda Busche has a striking combination of dark eyes and flaxen hair and despite her tender years she speaks two different languages.

Other South American children in this odd community in Washington, are the two sons of Senor Diaz, the Minister from the little known Republic of Paraguay. The new Mexican Ambassador and Senor Castro have seven children; Hector, aged eighteen; Evangelina, fifteen; Horacio, fourteen; Margarita, thirteen; Mario, eleven; Leon, nine and Jorge, seven. At the home of the Envoy from Costa Rica there are half a dozen children; the Minister from Haiti has two dark-complexioned sons; there are several young people in the household of the first Minister from the new Republic of Panama; and five attractive youngsters enliven things at the residence of the new Ambassador from Brazil—the first Ambassador (a diplomat of higher rank than a Minister) to come to the United States from any South American country. These young people from Brazil, speak the Portuguese language whereas the junior citizens from all other Pan-American countries speak Spanish.

Chinese Children.

Conspicuous among the juveniles of all nations gathered in Washington are those from China. The present Minister from the Celestial Empire, Sir Chen Tung Liang-Cheng is a widower who has a large family but only three of them accompanied him to this country—a daughter aged seven, who is famous in Washington for her superb jewels and two sons one of whom is not yet twelve years of age while the other is still younger in the same household are four half-American children, the little sons and daughters of Yang Kwai, a Chinese who acts as interpreter at the Legation whose wife is an American formerly living in Springfield, Mass.

The daughter of the Minister is known even to her intimate friends as Miss Ling. Like other Celestial women of high station she has a given name but the Chinese are a very social people and the Minister's daughter is seldom addressed by her first name even by her father. Minister Liang's two sons who now speak English almost as fluently as their father took up their residence in Washington but the daughter of the Envoy still clings to her native dress consisting of loose blouse and trousers. Chinese fashions have not changed in centuries but Miss Liang's costumes are made by a Chinese tailor connected with the Legation. Her costumes are of the richest silks and satins, black and white being her favorite colors. The quaint Chinese shoes that she wears cause this young lady to walk in what appears to American eyes, a rather awkward fashion but she has not the small, deformed feet such as have prevented some of her predecessors at the Chinese Legation from walking without assistance.

Young Chilean Ladies.

Two young people who have made many American friends during a long term of residence in the United States are the daughters of Senor Don Jose Walker-Sarriena, the Minister from Chile. These young ladies have been living under the Stars and Stripes for nearly five years and have attended American schools. They have the clear olive complexion, dark hair and eyes and rich coloring typical of the Latin Race.

As has been mentioned above there are many young people in the households of the various Ministers and Central America and the West Indies. At the Legation of Haiti, are the Misses Durice, popular young relatives of Minister Legier, who by the way is one of the veteran diplomats at Washington, having resided in this country continuously for ten years.

Another young lady who is a native of the United States is the little son of Senor Quesada, the Minister or Envoy from the Republic of Cuba. Senor Quesada and his wife have two children, both strikingly handsome with large dark eyes and the olive complexion of the Latin-American. GULF STREAM SWIMMERS.

THEY ENCOUNTER MANY UNKNOWN AND SINGULAR DEMONSTRATIONS OF THE DEEP.

Startling Experience of a Moonlight Swim in the Great Ocean Current Accomplished by Shark-Scored Fish Away.

The wharf rats of New York and other large cities who seem willing to brave the wrath of the officers of the law are but the marine mammals of the most fearless swimmers of the world. A commercial traveler who journeyed, not only over the land but in foreign lands as well, in speaking of his happy boyhood days when he was associated with the daring swimming population of the Metropolis, said that, however pleasant and enjoyable his youthful excursions, they were not to compare with a swim in the Gulf Stream—the Gulf Stream, teeming with life, that only one whose nerves are in absolute consonance with the ocean can escape. Wriggling and rattling things grip unseen at the swimmer's breast and arms. Silvery flashes before his face tell of fish turning their glittering sides sharply as they leap away at his approach. Big and little, rising out of enormous depths to sink again half seen, all conspire to make that midnight splendor a scene of sudden terrors to any except the fearless.

Moonlight Swim in the Tropics.

"One evening," said the man of commerce, "I had the man of commerce, having a week of the joys of swimming this stream, I proposed to a couple of my friends that we break the monotony by taking a dip in the water by moonlight. One of them consented, and we were soon disporting ourselves in the clear moonlit water. "We were going along easily and enjoying the swim immensely. Rarely have I seen a swimmer so comfortable. Every stroke made me fire whirl around us, and once, when I looked over at my companion, who was swimming about of me probably a hundred feet away, he seemed to be absolutely immersed in sparkling blue light. But that same moment I became aware of a third area of swiftly moving phosphorescence between us; and the next instant he surfaced and I saw he was being pulled by a big shark, a good three feet longer than I am.

Shark Was Gamey.

"I splashed hard, but the shark, contrary to the habits of his kind, did not turn tail. He kept right on, and then my companion saw him and became nervous. He began to swim unceasingly, and I knew at once that he might not keep his head if the big fish should really try to annoy him. So I struck straight across at right angles.

"Just as I got half way over the shark put on speed and forged ahead in a flash. For a moment, as I saw that green, submarine streak of fire, with the glittering dorsal fin sticking up higher than my head, coming straight for me like a shot, I was nearly panic stricken myself. But I turned directly at him, pounding and slashing the sea with hands and feet and blowing the water to make a better showing. The man-eater sailed down, slowly, till it glimmered faintly beneath the surface, and I saw my companion's arm and helped him along."

"I guess you don't ever want a moonlight swim here again after that, eh?" said one of his hearers.

"Oh, we were kind of scared, all right, was the reply, but it wasn't that bad. Only I will confess that we sat around for nearly an hour getting our nerves straightened out before we swam back."

GREAT CULEBRA CUT.

Biggest Piece of Digging Ever Undertaken—A Huge Mexican Drainage Cut.

The huge excavations for the Panama Canal across the Isthmus divide will be by far the greatest furrow in the earth's surface ever made by human agency. This statement is made by the Engineering News, in a comprehensive discussion of the great excavation projects of the world. The Panama Canal, which is the chief mind-finder to grasp its real magnitude, and it can only be appreciated by the Engineering News, in a comprehensive discussion of the great excavation projects of the world. The Panama Canal, which is the chief mind-finder to grasp its real magnitude, and it can only be appreciated by the Engineering News, in a comprehensive discussion of the great excavation projects of the world.

So far as it has been able to discover, the only deep cut at all comparable with that to be made through the Culebra divide is the great Notch stonage cut through the hills which surround the Valley of Mexico. This huge excavation was begun in 1610, for the purpose of affording an outlet to the flood waters which had inundated the City of Mexico and destroyed a great part of the city and its inhabitants. For more than a hundred and forty years labor on this great work was the chief task of the Mexican nation, and it was not until the year 1759 that it was finally completed. The total length of excavation at that time was twelve and one-half miles. Its greatest depth is 197 feet, and its greatest width is 361 feet. The total amount of material excavated was about 21,000,000 cubic yards. In comparison with this the cut at Culebra will have a considerably greater maximum depth and width, even for the project with the eighty-five-foot summit level. The total cube of excavation at the Culebra divide was estimated by Engineer Wallace as 150,000,000 cubic yards for the sea-level canal and 111,000,000 cubic yards for a canal with a sixty-foot summit level.

While in mere size of excavation the cut through the Panama divide is by far the larger, the fact that the Notch stonage cut was made with absolutely no aid from machinery, or mechanical power, is a record which no man-made muscle, makes our task on the isthmus seem like mere child's play in comparison with that accomplished by those patient toilers under the torrid sun of Mexico two centuries ago. When one recalls that this deep, artificial valley, more than twelve miles long, was all dug by the labor of Indians, who excavated the material with the crudest hand tools and carried it in baskets on their heads to the place of final deposit, the great cut of the Notch stonage, with the Pyramids of Egypt, among the world's greatest wonders.

What Governs Price of Dogs.

The price paid for a dog seems to be governed not so much by the value of the animal as the sentiment of the purchaser in the matter of his kind and, as a rule, the sporting dog brings the lowest figure. Doubtless this is due to the fact that the man who wants a gun dog is a practical person, while the seeker after the "show dog" pays for running the "show." It is gratifying here that many a good gun dog also shows well, but the highest prices go for the show animal, pure and simple.

At a recent sale of pointers and setters at Birmingham, England, one of the most important sales in years, the entire lot—two score or more—sold for $3,025. The highest price paid was $125, for the famous female pointer, Coronation (four and a half years), the winner of many championships; while among the setters the highest was a great field trial winner, who brought only $185. American buyers have thought these dogs cheap at $1,000 apiece.

In contrast with these prices, the bull terrier Woodcote Wonder sold in New Haven for $5,000 to a Croker, Jr. purchaser, Richard Croker, Jr., and Frank Gould paid as high as $5,000 for a St. Bernard. These are real runnings-up into the thousands of the price of the dog, which is tagged on to bench space, of not a few 30-cent dogs, exhibited at some of the shows, where it is believed necessary to have something attractive.

Highest Salaried Woman.

Miss Kate Holliday Claghorn, of Brooklyn, has been appointed to be registrar of the tenement house department of the city and is the highest paid woman in the civil service of New York State. At a salary being $3,000 a year.

At a competitive examination, the only other person to pass was George Hale, a veteran in the department, whose average was a little less than that of Miss Claghorn. Miss Claghorn is a very pretty young woman of modest and unassuming manner.

RESOURCES OF THE SOUTH.

THEY ARE MAGNIFICENT; BUT DEVELOPMENT HAS ONLY JUST COMMENCED.

No Section of the United States Offers Productive Land So Cheap. Opportunity for Five Millions of Riches.

BY WILLIAM E. SMYTHE.

It is a comfort to us to look forward to the day when our children and our grandchildren will be the citizens of the Republic? Will they have the same chance or an equally good chance with us, or the chance that our fathers and our grandfathers had to enjoy the blessings of our free institutions? Will they have the chance that we have to make or secure, each a home of his own?

It has been said that the true test of a nation's prosperity is the provision which it makes for the comfort of posterity. The present population of the United States is 80,000,000. A generation more, at the present rate of increase, and it will be 120,000,000 or 130,000,000. A century hence, it will be 500,000,000. The children of some of us, anyway our grandchildren, will live to see that date. Will the United States then be able to sustain such a population? No, not half that number, even with every arable acre cultivated according to present methods. It is estimated that with every acre cultivated after the present manner, the country could produce only enough to sustain 14,000,000 people. What about the remaining 350,000,000 souls of which our children or grandchildren will be a part?

Do we ever stop to think that the matter for organizing rural settlement throughout the United States—of building the Indian Reservation, of your place—is not merely a matter of increasing material prosperity, or even a matter of making homes for the homeless, but something which is absolutely vital to the very existence of the Nation in times to come, and to come very shortly?

Somewhat must look ahead; some body must take account of the needs of the future. It is a pertinent question which the future must answer, and which the future simply cannot answer unless the present generation begins to organize its forces for the systematic and scientific development of our entire fund of natural wealth, not even then unless methods are devised to prevent waste and to increase efficiency in every direction.

The Prophecy of Malthus.

A century ago, one Malthus, started the world by depicting the horrors which would come if food came from over-production. His theory was that the number of human beings increased much faster than the means of subsistence; hence, that disaster must come in the natural course of events. It was not given him to foresee how vastly the means of subsistence would be increased through the invention of labor-saving machinery, the discovery of new crops and methods of cultivation, and the improvement of the means of distribution.

So that many of the present-time writers, having in mind the advance of science, speak in no little derogation of the teaching of Malthus as narrow and even unscientific. However, the vast, ever-unfolding resources of the world. Nevertheless Malthus's warnings were not entirely unjustified, and as applied to ourselves it must be conceded that the thoughtful people of the United States have no more urgent matter of concern than to make provision for surplus population upon the soil and to train the rising generation so that it may know how to make the best possible use of natural resources now wastefully employed or altogether neglected. Necessity, the prolific mother of invention, has doubtless continued to place in our hands new tools which will multiply our power of production, and even make it possible to brave trials and hardships we must do thoroughly and well the work which needs to be done in organizing prosperity for our people by means of rural settlement.

The rural settlement, and all that this term involves in its broadest application—the division of land into smaller farm homes, sufficient for the support of a family from the soil, the diversification of crops, and their utmost cultivation and the improvement and breeding up of plants so that they may yield the greatest product, the utilization of every waste and unproductive acre—in short, the settling of the entire country into small rural homes, so that every family shall own a piece of land from which they may secure a living for himself and his family, and which may be passed on to his children, is a matter of no more important question before the country to-day.

The Empire of the South.

Now all this is merely introductory to a consideration of the opportunity for domestic expansion in various parts of our great country, and of the need of private and public enterprise in making these opportunities available for the masses of men. First of all, let us look at that great empire which lies between Alaska and Dixon's, and the Gulf of Mexico, and, for the most part, east of the Mississippi River.

A native of New England and a citizen of the Pacific Coast, I never fully grasped the truth about the South until through travel, I saw and came to know things as they are. It is a vast, fertile land, one of our country, easily interesting because of its historic associations, running back to the earliest days of settlement on this continent, but practically developed to the limit of its normal growth and possessing resources prior to some other portion of the Union, especially to those of the Far West.

The truth is something very different. In an economic sense, the South is a new country, with immense resources (Continued on next page.)

And when we say satisfactory we mean satisfactory in every respect. It is not an improvement on the old style lamp, but an entirely NEW METHOD of lighting, which is a great improvement on the old style lamp.

It actually pays for itself. The ordinary lamp with the round globe, generally considered the best of all, burns about 8 hours on a quart of oil. While The Angle Lamp burns all day long on the same quantity. This, even where oil is cheap, is an average of two hours more than it is used to be. And another way it saves as much—perhaps more, as an average of two hours more than it is used to be. And another way it saves as much—perhaps more, as an average of two hours more than it is used to be.

A gallon of oil a week absolutely wastes, simply because your lamp cannot give a brilliant light, but it is a waste of money. KILLING FEVER TICKS.

These two experiments will produce a fever-reducing agent which will be a valuable asset to the cattle men of the South-west.

Promising Experiments. The cattle men of the South-west are being kept busy by the fever ticks that are so common to that section. It is believed that the fever ticks are the cause of the fever in cattle, and that the fever is the result of the ticks. The Department of Agriculture has been working on this problem for some time, and has now produced a fever-reducing agent which will be a valuable asset to the cattle men of the South-west.

The Manure Pit.

Where is the wise farmer who would sell to his neighbor a load of his finest corn or a load of some green crop for a dollar bill. Yet there are thousands of agriculturists all over the country who are doing practically the very thing when they dispose of their barnyard manure for $1 a load. Others are wasting the most valuable constituents of the manure they save. The manure produced on the farm is its most valuable asset.

There are in the United States, in round numbers, 17,000,000 horses, 61,000,000 cattle, 47,000,000 hogs and 45,000,000 sheep. Experiments have shown that if these animals were kept in stalls or pens throughout the year and the manure, both liquid and solid, carefully saved, the approximate value of the manure produced by each horse is the new idea that the farmer should be as carefully protected from unnecessary loss, as should any other farm product, after he has for twenty years stored the barnyard manure under the eaves upon the slope which forms one border of the running brook.

Experiments made by various Government experiment stations show that the construction of sheds or covered yards for the protection of manure is well worth while. The manure from the horse and cattle stables and the sheep and calf pens should be spread out evenly over these yards, covered with coarse litter, and the whole kept firmly closed by preventing animals to run over it, thus preventing injurious fermentation.

To Save All the Fertility.

A more elaborate and expensive style of covered yard, a plan for which is furnished by the Department of Agriculture, provides not only for the required protection of both animals and manure, but also affords an excellent grain chamber where feed can be stored for convenient use. Under the side rails of the shed is a covered way for the storage of small tools and a great variety of articles that are continually in the way when living about the farm buildings. It also provides protection to animals when housed at night during the summer, this roof protecting them from heavy showers in the night and affording good chance for exercise in the winter, as all the sides, except that toward the south, can be protected against cold winds through temporary boarding.

Many stables are so situated that by adding a cheap lean-to, a manure pit is easily produced. The outside boarding of the lean-to should be, for a part of the way at least, put horizontally and hung in the form of a flat door, so that the manure can be easily loaded on a wagon standing on the outside of the building.

A great number of farmers who have adopted manure sheds and covered Rattlesnake Den.

We were lumbering in central Pennsylvania during the summer of 1870, our portable steam mill standing in a place of woodland, near a small stream and within a short half mile of a rocky ledge, known as "Rattlesnake Den."

During the hot days, rattlers were constantly met, and "Harry," who drove the daily stage through the "Rattlesnake Den," had won quite a local reputation from having killed more than a score since the melting of the snow. The pretty young wife of our engineer had charge of the boarding house, and after the noon meal was served, the dishes cleared away and the house put in order, she was accustomed to bring her sewing into the shade near our mill, which was the cleanest and coolest part of the mill, and sit for an hour or two before commencing the preparation of the supper.

She was a sweet, attractive sight that hot afternoon of July 1, 1870. Her dress was white, and her hair rivaling the whiteness of her simple frock, the only female in our camp of rough, heavy men, but one whom any of us would have defended from all harm at any risk.

Some of the men were rolling up the logs on the skid, some sawing them into boards, others carrying the boards to the yard, while my partner, Manuel Motz, was personally tending to the more skilful work at the planer, in yards have obtained unsatisfactory results, but the Department of Agriculture believes that this is probably due to the fact that these structures have generally been loosely put together, allowing a free circulation of air, which has dried out the manure. On this account barn cellars, so common in New England, possess decided advantages as receptacles for manure. The common practice of allowing the manure to "work over" in these cellars is a wise one, since it mixes the manure and keeps it moist and warm. In fact, if these cellars are provided with impervious bottoms to hold the liquid manure, the loss of moisture is probably the most perfect practice.

Manure the Best Fertilizer.

Barnyard manure is the most effective means at the disposal of the average farmer to permanently improve his soil. No other fertilizer possesses to so great a degree the power of restoring worn out soils to productivity and giving them lasting fertility. It provides actual fertilizing constituents; it improves the physical properties of the soil, increasing the amount of humus, which is generally deficient in worn soils, bettering its texture and increasing its water-absorbing and water-holding power. Experiments have shown that the influence of manure may be increased twenty years after application. It directly represents fertility drawn from the soil and made to be returned to it, and it is the only fertilizer which, in many cases it has been demonstrated that the value of the manure obtained in cattle feeding represents largely, if not entirely, the profit of feeding. There are sound, scientific reasons for the high esteem in which manure is held. It contains all the fertilizing elements required by plants in quickly available forms that insure plentiful crops and permanent fertility. It supplies nitrogen, phosphoric acid and potash, and it also renders the stored up materials of the soil more available, makes it more friable and warmer, and enables it to retain more moisture.

Automobiles are now running a mile in less than half a minute, and two miles in one minute.

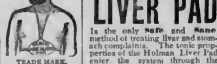

BEWARE OF NOSTRUMS

(QUACK MEDICINES)

Which when taken the stomach to cure a complaint are liable to cause a habit for some time.

THE PRINCIPLE OF ABSORPTION

Is the secret more of curing disease. The action of every drug every day is three or four times greater if absorbed by the skin than if swallowed.

THE PRINCIPLE OF ABSORPTION

Is the only safe and sane method of treating liver and stomach complaints. The only property of the Holman Liver Pad is to absorb the poisons, remove the poisons from the system, and restore the system to its normal condition, just as nature would do.

For the relief and absolute cure of Malaria, the Holman Liver Pad has been known for years. It is a Positive Preventive of Yellow Fever, Typhoid Fever, Severe Headache and all Liver troubles.

Having used your Pad for some months past, both in my private and family, I enthusiastically recommend them to the profession and public for all diseases of the liver and stomach. The Pad has never failed to give me relief in all cases. Very respectfully, J. M. J. JACKSON, M. D., Atlanta, Ga.

CATTLE INFECTED WITH TEXAS FEVER.

Life, which is now prohibited. The loss in money and the convenience of this arrangement can be understood.

Introduce Cattle from India.

In this connection an expert on the subject of Texas fever has been directed to examine the cattle from India, and to report on the results of his examination.

It is believed that the cattle from India are free from Texas fever, and that they can be introduced into this country without any special precautions.

The Department of Agriculture has been working on this problem for some time, and has now produced a report which will be a valuable asset to the cattle men of the South-west.

ANNOUNCEMENT.
For Congress.
We are authorized to announce the HON. JOHN J. PATHE, of Nelson county, as a candidate for Congress in the Fourth Congressional District, subject to the action of the Democratic party.

A. J. Pate was in the city Friday.
Col. David Henry, of Irvington, was in town Friday.

Otto Taal, Mattingly, went to Evansville last Wednesday to visit.

Mrs. T. S. Nichols and daughter were in Hannville last week.

Mrs. M. E. Burdette of Owensboro, visited Mrs. Collins last week.

Scheme No. 5 will save you at least $1.25 on every room you paper.—Edward Gregory.

Uncle Ennis Moorman was in town Saturday. Uncle Ennis is a faithful old subscriber to the News.

Mrs. Batt and son, of Cannelton, who has been visiting relatives here returned home Saturday.

H. L. Stader sold the two fine horses he has been driving to his "day" to a Tall City party last week for $350.

J. T. Matthews was in the city Saturday from Mattingly. Mr. Matthews is a sturdy and prosperous young farmer of his neighborhood and well liked by all.

Mrs. George Jordan has had a fine lot of trees set out on the vacant lot adjoining her hotel property. Cloverport would be a more beautiful town if others owning vacant lots would carry out this idea.

T. W. Haliday went to Chicago last Wednesday. Mr. Haliday says he will have his hotel at Far Springs completed by June 1 if material can be secured. Improvements have been made in various ways at the Springs. Mr. Haliday says that he can bill the hotel with guests as soon as it is completed.

Ernest Popham, who has been engaged in the mercantile business here as senior partner of the firm of Popham Bros., will leave for Red Moon, Oklahoma March 19, where he will establish a mercantile business. Ernest is a bustling young man and has made a success in this city. He has a fine character and a good reputation. The News wishes him much success in his new field.

Didn't Know why He Tapped Car Wheels.

The inefficiency of Mexican labor was under discussion by a group of mining promoters.

On my last trip to Mexico," said one, "while our train halted at Jimulco, a dinner station on the Mexican Central, I alighted and watched the mechanic who went from car to car sounding the wheels with a hammer, presumably to test their condition. He was a fair type of the native 'skilled' workman. Just to draw him out I inquired:

"Why do you tap the wheels?"

"Setting down his torch, he stared at me in amazement. 'Because the master mechanic tells me to be replied. 'But why?' I persisted. 'What good does it do?'

I do not know, Senior," said he.

The master mechanic tells me to strike each wheel and I do so.

That is enough for me.

"How long have you been working at this job?" I asked.

"Two years," he replied. "For two years he had been going through the form of sounding the car wheels without the slightest knowledge of the object of the test or the slightest curiosity concerning it!"—Philadelphia Record.

Hardinsburg, Ky.

COUNTY UNIT

BILL PASSED

After Fierce Fight Lieut Gov.

Thorne Gets Aggravated-- Makes Nanghty Remarks.

TRIUMPH FOR TEMPERANCE.

Some Features of the County Unit Bill.

All counties, with the exception of those containing cities of the first four classes, must vote as units on local option questions.

Cities of first four classes and the counties outside these cities make separate units.

If a county votes "dry," no precinct in that county can be "wet." On the other hand, if a county votes "wet," any precinct in that county, which previous to the election was "dry," shall remain "dry."

The same rule applies as well to cities of the first four classes. There are at present 119 counties in the State. Sixty-eight are local option. The temperance element claims that under the bill passed yesterday twenty-seven more will be added to their column, and that they have a great chance to carry other units.

Frankfort, Ky., March 8.—"I don't give a damn what you do," roared Lieut. Gov. Thorne standing at his seat and shaking his gravel dubiously at Senator Henry George and the entire local option sentiment of the State today.

The uproar which had followed a ruling by President Thorne with reference to the Local Option Bill which came over from the House, immediately became pandemonium.

Senator George stood directly in front of President Thorne and shook his fist back at the Lieutenant Governor, while an appeal from the decision of the chair was being prepared.

Local option legislation lay in the balance.

Members of the Senate who were friends of the Lieutenant Governor crowded around him advertising moderation. Members of the House and hangers on in the lobby looked through the doors of the Senate chamber. Friends of the Local Option Bill stood on the floor demanding re-consideration and breathing defiance at Lieut. Gov. Thorne and the saloon element in the upper branch of the Legislature.

Then President Thorne apologized and the Local Option Bill as amended in the House re-empted down to the fourth class cities, passed by a vote of 34 to 3.

Not such another session of the Legislature has been held this year as was the one this morning. It was true in the House, sensational in the Senate.

Spirit of Compromise.

The fight in the House amounted only to a little scrimmage when all is told. The spirit of compromise was in the air and almost the entire body breathed it in.

The gale was thrown down when Judge M. M. R-dwine declared for the committee substitute for the Chinn substitute, which came from the

SKIN ERUPTIONS FOR 35 YEARS

Suffered Severely With Eczema All Over Body—Examined 15 Times by Government Board Who Said There Was No Cure—An Old Soldier Completely Cured.

A THOUSAND THANKS TO CUTICURA REMEDIES

"For over thirty-five years I was a severe sufferer from eczema. The eruption was not confined to any one place. It was all over my body, limbs, and even on my head. I am sixty years old and an old soldier, and have been examined by the Government Board over fifteen times, and they said there was no cure for me. I have taken all kinds of medicine and have spent large sums of money for doctors, without avail. A short time ago I decided to try the Cuticura Remedies, and after using two cakes of Cuticura Soap, two boxes of Cuticura Ointment, and two bottles of Cuticura Resolvent, two treatments in all, I am now well and completely cured. A thousand thanks to Cuticura. I cannot speak too highly of the Cuticura Remedies. John T. Houch, Richmond, Ross Co., Ohio, July 17, 1905."

Senator. That re-empted down to fifth class cities from the operation of the law. The committee substitute re-empted down to fourth class cities. An abortive attempt was made to substitute the original Cammack will, but the friends of local option had no hopes for the measure, and the enemies felt no fear of it. The matter of fact, was the attempt of the Republican members in the House, to hold up the hands of the Senate Republicans. After a few stray shots, the vote was taken and the Republican side lost out. The matter was then cleared for the real action by decision via vote vote in favor of the committee amendment. A camera defeat was not more decisive than that of the station element who stood for the Chinn amendment. They got to the center of the floor. "Let's face the music. The House amendment to the Chinn substitute is a fair compromise. Give the people what they want," he insisted.

"I want to ask the Senator from Mercer why he has changed his mind," interrupted Senator McNitt.

"I have not changed my mind," responded Senator Chinn with vehemence.

"I have always been for local option. I am still for local option, but I want a law that can pass, and this one will pass."

"I know you are a fair man," said Senator Chinn, turning to President Thorne. "Give this bill a chance. Ring the bell and call them to the post," he concluded, with a wave of his hand.

After a few preliminary remarks, in which President Thorne spoke of the fairness of his rulings, he ruled that the bill was out of the regular order and two-thirds vote was necessary to get it before the Senate.

"Then I appeal from the decision of the chair," yelled Senator George, and a howl went up.

Leaped From Seats.

Senators jumped from their seats and hurried hither and thither. President Thorne stood at his seat, his face white with anger, pondering his failure in the whole chamber reverberated with the howl.

"Prepare your appeal," he thundered.

In the face of the outraged feelings of the local option people, the Committee on Rules to their nerve. They got themselves together and agreed that the situation must be relieved. Senator Hickman, Senator McNitt and other friends of the Lieutenant Governor hurried to his desk and held short, sharp conversation.

The friends of the measure saw the sky clearing and the horizon subdued. "Do I understand that we are now to vote on a concurrence?" asked Senator George, rising innocently in his seat.

That was the broadband. President Thorne leaped to his feet. "I don't want to vote on a concurrence. I want to vote on a concurrence."

Graves to cast any insinuations on my rulings," he yelled. "The chair will rule when it gets ready and the way it pleases. The chair's ruling stands until the question is changed," said his gravel threateningly at Senator George.

"The Senator from Graves appealed from the decision of the chair," responded Senator George, shaking his fist with equal vehemence. "And that appeal is now being prepared."

Then It Came Out.

"I don't give a damn what you do!" yelled the thoroughly aroused Lieutenant Governor, standing and alternately pounding the desk and shaking the gravel at the Graves Senator.

"The Senator from Graves does not care to cast any insinuations at the chair," responded Senator George. "He is simply having an appeal from the chair prepared."

"All right, then," replied Mr. Thorne, "but I won't allow any man to question my motives in ruling."

"It is to the clear headed judgment of the chair that I address myself," interrupted Senator Campbell.

"I can't change my ruling, because some one has asked me to," declared Mr. Thorne. "If the occasion for the ruling is withdrawn, that's different."

"I withdrew my motion to recommend to the Committee on Rules, I responded Senator Charlton.

On Troubled Waters.

Then the oil-pouring began. "The chair wants to make an explanation," said President Thorne. "I have always tried to be fair to every member. This is the first time ever made to appeal from my decision. I am a little jealous of my record for fairness and I might have said something I should not have said. I don't want any one to think I was mad."

"I think it takes more backbone for a man to acknowledge he was wrong than to stand the fight."

This removed every cloud and the Senate was put in a good humor again.

"I will recognize the Senator from Owen or the Senator from McBracken." "As the Senator from Owen is the originator of this bill, I yield to him," responded Senator Campbell.

Senator Cammack moved that the Senate concur in the action of the House on Senate Bill No. 106. The amendment was concurred in and Senator McNitt moved its adoption.

The point was made that the session had been extended until the meter was disposed of and then it was moved that the bill as amended be passed.

"Senators, you are now voting on this question; the man in the law book can get all the whiskey he wants and the man in a little town, like mine, can't get a drop," explained the president officer.

Senator Allen, who cast the first vote for the bill, explained that a majority of the Senators wanted the amended bill, so he voted yes.

Senator Phelps explained that he had promised to support the fifth class cities, but he had been released from that promise and he voted yes. Senator DeHaven voted yes because he thought the bill unconstitutional.

Senator Spencer voted against the bill because he did not favor such legislation. Later Senator Charlton, who voted against the bill, asked to have his vote recorded yes.

"Any more Senators want to get in to the band wagon?" asked President Thorne. Senator DeHaven got aboard and the vote as finally recorded showed only three votes against the measure. Senator Harbison, McNitt and Spence.

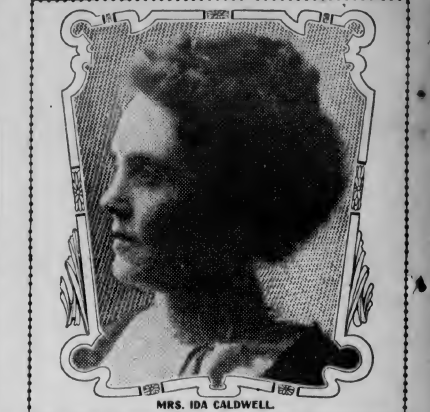

George and Charlton Mad.

The storm broke again as soon as the Senators got together in the afternoon, but from a different direction. It was an effort to question the right of the Committee on Rules to perform made by Senator George. As a result of that effort Senator George and Senator Charlton indulged in criminal conversation and left it that way, each charging the other with false statements in the most impassioned manner.

Senator George wanted to get his bill placing express companies under the Railroad Commission before the Senate and charged that Senator Charlton had refused to call out. Senator Charlton replied by declaring that Senator George had requested that action on the bill delayed.

"The Louisville Senator declared an innuendo that he was influenced in not calling out the bill was false and the Senator from Wingo answered by saying that any statements referring to him were untrue and black as death.

Each of the Senators was red with heat and threw the Senate into the greatest confusion it looked for a time like the two Senators might go after each other, but the resolution was referred to the Committee on Rules and further trouble was averted.
